

Confederacy's Official Creed Inspection

February to March 2012

Official Release of the Operation

Confederacy of Annihilations Official investigation into the Creed Clan

Contents

- 1) Title Page
- 2) Table of Contents
- 3) Mission Prologue
- 4) Imperial Inquisition of the Creed Website
- 5) Prince Jakes Report
- 6) Epilogue

Mission Prologue of the Confederacy of Annihilations Official Investigation into the Creed Clan. This Mission was concaved during a Parliament meeting, although it was not released to the public until this document was released. The Parliament had decided that because the Leader of Creed, TerribleAustin was a teen year old his clan might not be the best clan and that his members might welcome the opportunity to join the Confederacy of Annihilation. This mission was launched on the 26th of February 2012. There are many reasons why the Confederacy lunched this mission. One of them would be encase Creed in the future decided to declare war on the Confederacy. Another would be because we thought that there clan might be weak and therefore we could persuade them to join the Confederacy, another reason might have just been that we didn't really know anything about them. In this report we will bring you the report sent to the Kaiser by Prince Jake, The Confederate Ambassador sent to the Creed Clan for a week. And the report from the Kaiser made to the Parliament along with the findings of the Parliament.

The first impressions the Kaiser received from looking at the Creed website was that the Creed Clan is a small, but growing clan. They have also lied about their clan, giving miss leading facts. However giving miss leading facts and warping the evidence is something that everyone who has ever lead a clan has done. There clan website does not totally convey the clans activates, however it does suffice. There website also lies by saying that they have never lost a war. However if you look at the other clans websites they say that they have won, they also give the Bunge.net link to prove it. Also upon further inspection of their website you begin to notice that in a few cases they have copied or tried to copy the United Nations Clan. There clan also appears to be very active, and from my own experiences with the Creed Clan and there leader I believe that it is safe to say that the Creed Clan does not have more than twenty people (February-March 2012 estimate) when I see TerribleAustin playing with his members I check the party details. When I look at the Party details most of the people he plays with seem to be from other clans, most likely allies. I have seen a small amount of people in his clan that he plays with, however those people seem to be the only people in his clan that he plays with or they are the only people in his clan that get online, also leading me to believe that his clan is mostly made up of people who are offline. His clan also has an eleven person clan council, form the few council members that I have met I would say that there age group is around twelve, and that is being generous. There clans leadership, officers and such seem to be vary disorganized, a contributing factor to that might be that they are also younger.(around twelve) Over all, and with all of these contributing factors in mind I would recommend that the Confederate Parliament and the Creed Council come to an agreement. I would recommend that they Confederacy of Annihilation become the Protectors of the Creed Clan (have the Creed Clan become Protectorates) by this I believe that both clans will prosper and both clans will benefit.

The following is the censored report from Prince Jake;

The Creed clan wasn't such a great experience. The custom maps and the members were the only thing I enjoyed, but the clan doesn't do much when I'm around. They have over five divisions in their clan. O.D.S.T., Army, Air Force, Creed Artificial Intelligence, Department of Homeland Security, Task Force, Navy, etc. They support the R.A.R.P. which is to Resurrect and Restore Peace. The main idea for R.A.R.P. is to quit clans from fighting and not getting along with another. The Creed Clan wanted a military based clan because it was more based on military ideas. The members love the clan! "The clan is really fun because it's more military based and it's fun to learn new stuff" says AwesomeTman13. The members love TerribleAustin! (I didn't speak with a lot of them because they wouldn't join my parties, but I got a hold of some). I discovered that the password to their hit-man list was; [REDACTED] and it gives me access to their active hit-man list. [REDACTED]

[REDACTED] The Creed Clan has a news! But it's not like any other news. It's about other clans and how they mostly "fail" at attacking them. Such as; Bhurza losing two battles against Creed Clan (2/26/12). Their news is jam packed with victories and issues about other clans. I enjoyed reading what had happened with all these clans. The Creed Clan has a "status" that represents what conflict they are in, and they are currently at war with U.U.F. and Arkias. The U.U.F. spawn kills according to His Excellency TerribleAustin. They have a bunch of allies and enemies such as; Confederacy of Annihilation (COA) T.F.N.1, Firebirds, U.L.R., etc. now they only have 3 enemies because they are in the operation R.A.R.P. as explained above. T.E.F., D.O.D., Arkias, and U.U.F.

This clan wasn't the best clan ever, but it did the job. Creed Clan had its moments but they resolved them. Thanks for your time Creed Clan!

Sincerely,
His Royal Majesty Prince Jake I

Confederacy's Official Creed Inspection

February to March 2012

Official Release of the Operation

Epilogue. Since the Creed Clan is small in number and is lead by a ten year old the Parliament of the Confederacy of Annihilation along with the State of the Confederacy of Annihilation has decided that, we will give the Creed Clan one chance to become a Protectorate or we will declare war on them, along with our allies. This operation ended on the 3rd of March 2012. This mission was a complete susses. Below is a list of the people who made this all happen and come together. The titles below are from March 2012

His Royal and Imperial Majesty the Kaiser Godfather I

His Royal Majesty Prince Jake I

Her Royal Majesty the Kaiserin Ice I

His Eminence Chief

General Mike

General Mulberry

General Slinky

General Luigi